

Re: 2009 Congressional Art Contest

As a Member of the United States House of Representatives, I am pleased to announce the 2009 Congressional Art Competition. This contest is a significant opportunity to recognize and encourage the artistic talent of high school students of Ohio's Fourth Congressional District.

The 2009 Congressional Art Competition will be open to all high school students residing in Ohio's Fourth Congressional District. Each of the eleven counties within the Fourth District will select a winner and alternates who will be recognized. A district winner will be chosen from the eleven county winners.

The work of art that is selected as the district winner will be displayed at the U. S. Capitol for one year, along with the district winners from across the United States. This is a remarkable opportunity, as thousands of individuals will pass by this display daily.

The contest rules, student information/release form and more facts regarding this contest are available online at:

<http://www.jordan.house.gov>

The district winner will be offered a scholarship and airfare tickets to visit the display of artwork in the U. S. Capitol. In addition, our office would be happy to arrange a tour of our nation's Capitol and look forward to meeting with the winner.

I hope that you will encourage high school art students to enter this valuable and prestigious competition. Please contact Susan Ohl in the Lima office at 419-999-6455 for more information regarding this contest.

Best regards,

Jim Jordan
Congressman, Ohio 4th District
